

Glenwood Community High School

Glenwood, Iowa

Glenwood Community Schools has experienced significant growth in the number of students they serve for several years. The district has been renting space to accommodate the increased student population. With approval of a bond issue, voters have set the course for a much-needed expansion to their facilities to meet the school's long-term requirements.

Omaha Construction Services, Inc. was the low bidder on construction for the new high school in March 2007. Earthwork began in May and footings and foundations were completed in June. The high school will be ready to be occupied in December 2008.
